12. Troubleshooting assistance required

Yahoo group: YaesuFT2500M
Date: 2006-12-13 15:50:25 UTC
From: nativeMT
Topic: 12 Message: 12

I was given a FT-2500m to troubleshoot.

Evidence in the fuse holder(cresote) led me to the 18v protection zener. Sure enough, it was shorted to ground and I cut the lead.

Power was added and only only unsquelched audio came from the speaker and no diplay. I tracked the display problem down to the 5 volt regulator that provides Vdd to the main processor. I added a tempory jumper to the damaged regulator from another high current regulator and the unit powered up.

The third problems seems to be all the "grain of wheat" lamps on the display board are burnt out.

The forth problem still is the audio. When the unit is turned off with the power button, unsquelched audio noise is emminating from the speaker. Turn the unit on, and the squelch circuitry works.

I am having trouble understanding how audio(AF) comes from the receiver and what mutes it. Any help would be appreciated.

Thanks,
Corey

An update...
I found a circuit that creates "switch 13.8 volts" line and troubleshot a blown pnp power transistor. This transistor switches 13.8 volts to many parts of the processor board and regulators. It is shorted, thus the reason why all the circuits still have power when the power button is pressed.

At this point I am ordering new parts and replacing the zener, 5 volt regulator, an the pnp transistor. After all are replaced, I will begin function tests to locate any other hidden faults.

All parts have been installed and the radio now functions to factory specs.

281. Microphone wanted

Yahoo group: YaesuFT2500M

A few weeks ago I picked up a FT2400H at a hamfest. It works fine. Last week end I spotted another Yaesu-a FT2500M what was just a bit newer.
However, it came with no mic. box said MH36C. I guess that's the proper unit for the 2500M.
My 2400H has a MH27 ;it works fine on the 2500M.
Seems to me I read that the 36C was an "older" unit and the 27 was better.
So I need a mic as I plan on selling the 2400 unit only because it's just a bit older and the layout of the 2500 seems slightly better.

Who has a mic for sale (reasonable)- I found the mic is more costly than the base unit!
